

Monarch butterflies are bright orange, with black lines across their wings. A black border goes around the outside of their wings and is filled with two rows of white spots. Colour this Monarch butterfly.

You can help Monarch butterflies by planting milkweed for them to lay their eggs on. Also plant native flowers like goldenrod and aster to provide nectar for Monarchs to eat.

Adult monarch butterflies migrate south to Mexico in the fall. Thousands of monarchs gather together on trees in mountaintops, where they spend their winter. They return in the spring. Help this monarch butterfly find its way!
